

Human Rights Fellowship (Re-Advertised)

Title: Fellow – Human Rights and Access to Justice Program

Location: New York, NY

Duration: Full time for 6 months with possibility of promotion to a permanent position based on performance

Start date: September 2017

Salary: $50,000-$60,000 (based on experience)

Deadline for application: July 21st 2017

The Cyrus R. Vance Center for International Justice

The Vance Center advances global justice by engaging lawyers across borders to support civil society and an ethically active legal profession. The Vance Center is a unique collaboration of international lawyers catalyzing public interest innovation. A non-profit program of the New York City Bar Association, we bring together leading law firms and other partners worldwide to pioneer international justice initiatives and provide pro bono legal representation to social justice NGOs.

The Human Rights and Access to Justice Program

The Human Rights and Access to Justice Program protects individuals from discrimination, violence, injustice, and corruption and supports international human rights bodies committed to such protection. The program partners with local organizations and engages in projects related to advocacy and capacity building at the local, regional and international levels in furtherance of these goals. Through the Human Rights Program, the Vance Center assists NGOs worldwide on a variety of human rights issues such as violence against women, LGBT rights, prison conditions, rights of afro-descendants, and refugees. We also have a growing number of projects on international justice, atrocity prevention, and transitional justice including ongoing research on the role of the International Criminal Court in preventing mass atrocities and the responsibility to protect. The Human Rights Program also works in Colombia where we are assisting victims' organizations, human rights NGOs, and the United Nations in support of the peace process. In addition we have just launched a Business and Human Rights focus area where we are assisting NGOs in the United States and abroad with research and advocacy on business and human rights.

The Program undertakes research and analysis into complex international and comparative law issues to assist clients with advocacy, training, legislative reform, and international and regional human rights litigation. Our clients include U.S. based NGOs such as Human Rights Watch and Amnesty International, the United Nations, the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights as well as local NGOs abroad, in Latin American and in Africa.

The Vance Center recruits private law firms from the Vance Center Committee to work alongside our program staff on the projects. However, Program staff also engage in substantive legal work, including legal research and analysis, advocacy, and litigation.

Job Description

The Human Rights Fellow will be an integral part of the Human Rights Program and is expected to work on all aspects of the Program. Under the supervision of the Human Rights Program Director, the Fellow will be expected to:

- Conduct research and analysis on international human rights law and in some cases, domestic laws.
- Research and write background papers on countries where the Program is looking to engage.
- Research and contact new clients, particularly human rights NGOs in Latin America, Africa, and Asia.
- Engage with clients and law firms.
- Assist in coordinating and managing projects.
- Draft materials for publication on the Program's activities, cases, or current events.
- Plan and organize events in the United States and abroad.
- Undertake some administrative duties.

Qualifications

- J.D. or LLM graduate. Specialization in International Human Rights Law or Public International Law is a plus.
- 1-2 year experience in International Human Rights or Public International Law.

- Excellent research, writing, and communication skills.
- Fluency in English and Spanish. Fluency in Portuguese is highly desirable.
- Strong organizational and time-management skills and great attention to detail.
- Ability to work quickly and well under pressure, to juggle multiple tasks, and to meet tight deadlines.
- Excellent computer skills.
- Must be authorized to work in the U.S.

Application instructions:

The deadline for applications is July 21st 2017. Please email resume, a short writing sample on an international human rights issue, and a list of three references to vancevolunteers@nycbar.org. In the subject line please write "Human Rights Program Fellow". Applications will be considered as received and selection will take place when a qualified candidate is identified.

Due to the expected high number of applications, we are unable to respond to all inquiries personally. Only those selected for an interview will be contacted. Please, no phone calls or emails.